Jane Addams Day save the date bookmarks are available to pass out to your branch members and book clubs, to use at your branch events, and to pass out in your community like your local library, your local bookstores, your children/grandchildren's school, and your local colleges/universities. The possibilities are endless to help spread the word. For bookmarks, contact Kim Benziger at marlakim2@aol.com

AAUW - IL member, Barbara Zeitz, is available to speak to your branch or local community organization. She has a variety of presentations. One suggestion is the power point program "A Hull of a House of Women and Peace." Addams and the women of Hull-House, founded in 1889, initiated social reforms that formulated how American and the world operate today. In 1931, she received the Nobel Peace Prize. The founding of AAUW and its importance to all college-educated women of the time is highlighted. Outstanding Illinois women are also introduced and honored. Contact Barbara Zeitz at bjzeitz@comcast.net

Chicago Branch member and movie critic, Jan Lisa Huttner, is available to present the short film, Dinner at Jane's to your branch or local community organization. Dinner at Jane's is a documentary film directed by Suzanne Lacy. It was shot at Chicago's Hull-House Museum in September, 1993, during the centennial celebration of the Columbian Exposition. Dinner at Jane's is not commercially available. You can only see it by making special arrangements with Jan Lisa Huttner at witaswan@msn.com
